BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

At a Half-yearly General Meeting of Subscribers to the Bengal Civil Fund, Calcutta, held at the Town Hall, on Monday, the 31st January 1881.

PRESENT.—C. T. Buckland, Esq.; the Hon'ble H. L. Dampier; the Hon'ble W. F. McDonell, v.c.; the Hon'ble L. R. Tottenham; H. Bell, Esq. M.A.; the Hon'ble A. T. Maclean; F. R. Hogg, Esq.; J. Beames, Esq.; J. D. Maclean, Esq.; the Hon'ble C. D. Field, M.A. & LL.D.; H. Beverley, Esq. M.A.; D. R. Lyall, Esq.; J. Westland, Esq.; the Hon'ble A. Mackenzie, B.A.; D. M. Barbour, Esq.; W. M. Souttar, Esq. M.A.; J. Scobell Armstrong, Esq.; C. J. Lyall, Esq. B.A., C.I.E.; H. J. S. Cotton, Esq.; J. Crawford, Esq. B.A.; C. A. Wilkins, Esq.; C. P. L. Macaulay, Esq. M.A.; J. A. Bourdillon, Esq.; S. Jacob, Esq.; F. E. Handley, Esq.; H. M. Kisch, Esq. M.A.; G. A. Grierson, Esq.; and H. Lee, Esq. The Hon'ble L. R. Tottenham in the chair.

The following report was submitted by the Managers:—

REPORT.

1. The Managers submit the proceedings for the past half-year for the consideration and sanction of the meeting.

2. Subject to the approval of the subscribers, they have admitted to the benefits of the Fund the following families:—

Mrs. Halkett	£ 300	The widow of the late Mr. D. C. Halkett, an annuitant of 1877, who died in Scotland on the 11th February 1880.

Mrs. Money	£ 300	The widow and one daughter of the late Mr. D. J. Money, an annuitant of 1859, who died in England on the 16th July 1880.
One daughter	100
Total	400

Lady Beadon	£ 300	The widow and eight children (three sons and five daughters) of the late Sir Cecil Beadon, an annuitant of 1867, who died in England on the 18th July 1880.
Eight children	670
Total	970

3. Under Article V of the Rules the Marquis of Tweeddale has incurred the penalty of the exclusion of his daughter from the benefits of the Fund by failure to report her birth within the prescribed six months. Lord Tweeddale states that the omission was the result of oversight, and asks that the child may be admitted. The admission of the child to Fund benefits is dependent upon the decision of a general meeting of subscribers; and the Managers submit the case accordingly. They recommend that the child be admitted on payment of the minimum fine of Rs. 100, together with arrear subscriptions and 8 per cent. interest, as required by the rules. It has been the practice of the Fund hitherto to grant applications of this nature on the terms now recommended.

4. Mr. C. R. Marindin has applied for the remission of the fine of Rs. 50 incurred under Article V of the Rules for failure to report the birth of his daughter within the prescribed time. Mr. Marindin pleads that, as his daughter was born on the 30th October and his communication reporting the occurrence was dated 1st December, he was only one day late. He further states that the delay was accidental, and that on his pay-bill for November 1880 being made out, he directed that subscriptions for this child be deducted. He was informed in reply to his application that the fine must be paid and that the Managers would submit his representation to the subscribers at the next general meeting, if he desired it; but that they would be unable to recommend the subscribers to comply with his request. The practice of the Fund has been to exact the penalty of Rs. 50 in all cases where only carelessness or oversight can be pleaded. The case is submitted to the meeting, at the request of Mr. Marindin, for decision.

5. The Managers have received the following further application from Miss Palmer for a reconsideration of her case:—

Dated 5th October 1880.

From—MISS ALICE W. PALMER,

To—The Secretary to the Managers of the Bengal Civil Fund, Calcutta.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th July. I regret that the Managers of the Bengal Civil Fund have not felt themselves at liberty to recommend my appeal to the favorable consideration of the Members of the Service; for I am sure they must perceive the inequality of the rules, that accord to my half-brother, whose mother is living, and supported by the Fund, what they deny to me, who have no living mother to maintain or assist me.

The fact of my step-mother being on the Fund, is held by the Managers to bar my claim to an increase of allowance until after her death, though no bar to the claim of her son, my half-brother, during her life-time.

The fundamental error, as it appears to me, in the rule regarding the "wife or widow," is its failing to recognise the obvious distinction between a mother and a step-mother, in relation to the daughter. The daughter has a natural right to protection from the mother or "widow," but the step-daughter has none, and may be left at any time, to an unaided and admittedly inadequate provision.

My father, as I have stated in my former appeal, was more than forty years in the service, and contributed to the Fund, as the price of his annuity, more than three times the estimated half value of the pension.

Can it be too late, with the permission of the Managers, to re-open my case, as special and exceptional, at the next general meeting of the members of the service, or too presumptuous on my part, in again soliciting the support of the Managers which I am certain they would grant me, could they only realise the difficulty, or rather the impossibility, of maintaining even a decent exterior on a limited income of one-hundred a year.

I shall feel greatly obliged by your laying this letter before the Managers of the Fund, for such further consideration as they may think proper, and thanking you for your kind attention to my last, and requesting an answer to my present appeal, at your early convenience.

In reply to her previous application Miss Palmer was informed that her case was excluded under the revised rules which provided for the increased pension in the event of the "wife or widow" of a deceased subscriber having died, and that as cases of this description had been carefully considered when the rules were amended, the Managers were not prepared to recommend the subscribers to alter their decision. The action of the Managers was approved at the meeting of 10th August 1880. The present application is laid before the meeting at Miss Palmer's request.

6. The following circular has been addressed by the Managers to the subscribers with reference to a circular issued by certain subscribers in support of two resolutions advertised to be proposed at the next general meeting.

C I R C U L A R.

Dated Calcutta, the 11th December 1880.

To—All Subscribers.

I AM directed by the Managers to address you with reference to a circular recently issued by certain subscribers in support of two Resolutions which they propose to bring forward at the half-yearly general meeting in January.

2. Before proceeding to discuss the merits of the resolutions, the Managers desire to invite your attention to certain allegations in this circular, reflecting upon the management. It is stated that the Managers allowed unnecessary delay to occur in the preparation of the Actuary's report. If the subscribers will refer to the reports presented by the Managers at the different half-yearly general meetings, they will observe that the Managers have regularly reported to the subscribers the obstacles that had been encountered in obtaining the report, and the efforts that had been made to overcome them. In July 1875 the Managers reported that Mr. Brown, the Actuary, to whom the quinquennial valuation papers of 1873 had been entrusted, had died suddenly, leaving his report unfinished, and that owing to the difficulty experienced in tracing the process adopted by him, it had been found necessary to commission another Actuary (Mr. R. Hardy) to begin a fresh report. After a time it was found that Mr. Hardy was not making such satisfactory progress as might have been wished. In 1876 Mr. Verner, who had been officiating as Secretary to the Fund, had an interview with Mr. Hardy in London, and efforts were made to expedite the submission of the report. As there was still delay, the Managers, early in 1877, begged Mr. E. F. Harrison, the Comptroller-General, who had lately been one of their number, to see Mr. Hardy in London, and to endeavour to close the engagement with him, and to leave them free to select another Actuary. This was reported to the subscribers in July 1877, and it was at the same time announced that, as the delay which had occurred had rendered the information originally submitted for Mr. Brown's consideration practically obsolete, the Managers proposed to submit to professional enquiry the further data which the four years (1873—77) had rendered available. Mr. Harrison was at first disposed to think that the work had better remain in Mr. Hardy's hands. This was reported by the Managers in January 1878. Subsequently, in February 1878, Mr. Harrison reported that he had made an arrangement by which the investigation would be carried through by Mr. Sutton conjointly with Mr. Hardy. The statistical information was then, by Mr. Sutton's desire, brought up to 1878, and forwarded to him. The Managers reported progress in January 1879, and the report was received in July 1879. Not only were these proceedings before the service, but two of the subscribers who have signed this circular had special knowledge of some of the circumstances described above. One (Mr. Cotton) was a Manager in 1875 and the beginning of 1876, and the other (Mr. Verner) officiated as Secretary in 1875 and 1876, and in the latter year was actually engaged in London, on behalf of the Managers, in negotiating for the prompt submission of the report, and was cognizant of the proposal to lay more recent information before the Actuary.

3. It is further suggested that the Managers suppressed the resolution of 28th January 1874. That this is not the case will be apparent from the following extract from the Managers' circular of 13th October 1879, in which they stated the grounds on which they had decided not to recommend that the rules should be amended with retrospective effect from 1st April 1873:—

"The Managers consider it unnecessary to go back further than 31st March 1878 for the adjustment of the accounts. It is a fixed principle in the administration of all systems of insurance that long retrospective effect cannot be given to any distribution of surplus funds. The existing members of a fund are alone entitled to the benefit of a surplus, as they alone bear the chance of having to provide for a deficit. Claims which have become incumbent are represented by separate allotments of funds to provide for them. No risk attaches to them, they have been settled in full, and it would be impossible to manage any institution properly if they were liable to reconsideration. Moreover, the principle of retrospective adjustment, if once admitted, would involve the extinction of the greater part of the surplus, with no appreciable benefit to the Fund. It will be observed that the Actuary's calculation gives only Rs. 6,18,333 as the surplus on 31st March 1873. If, therefore, retrospective effect were given to that date, there would be very little to distribute."

The resolution was also prominently referred to at the meeting of 31st January last, immediately before the vote was taken on the proposal to give retrospective effect to the amendments of the rules from 1st April 1878 only: and the report of the proceedings of that meeting was before the subscribers for the period of two months, required by the rules, before their confirmation of its resolutions was finally accepted. It is stated in the circular that "so long ago as the 30th October 1879, Mr. Cotton protested by letter against the Managers' proposal, but without effect." This letter was communicated by Mr. Cotton to the newspapers simultaneously with its despatch to the Managers; it was referred to in the circular of 22nd November 1879; and it was referred to at the meeting of 31st January, before the vote was taken. Mr. Cotton also informed the Managers unofficially that he did not require a separate reply to his letter; and he afterwards, in March, voted in favour of the resolution, against which he now states that he protested without effect. If Mr. Cotton, the author of the letter, thus adopted the very view against which the letter was chiefly directed, it is very difficult to see how it can be urged that others would have voted differently had their attention been more closely directed to the contents of this letter.

4. From the wording of the first resolution and the language used in the paragraph which precedes it, it would seem that the authors of the circular are of opinion that, under the rules as now amended, the families enumerated do not in any way participate in the increased benefits. As a matter of fact, however, these families are, except in respect of the donation, in exactly the same position, from 1st April 1878, as the families of subscribers who died on or after that date. None of them are subject to the one-sixth deduction; all of them who were motherless on 1st April 1878, and who have since become motherless, draw the increased allowance with effect from the date in question; all the sons draw the special allowance with effect from 1st April 1878. Additions can only be made to benefits by amendments of rules, and retrospective distribution can only be effected by giving retrospective effect to the amendments. The amendments were given retrospective effect from 1st April 1878. They were accordingly to be read as having been in force on that day; and therefore the rule regarding one-sixth deduction ceased to have effect from that day, and every child fulfilling the conditions of being motherless, or, in the cases of sons attaining the age of 16 years on or after that day, was necessarily entitled to the new benefits. The donation, however, could only be given to families which became incumbent on or after that day. It could only be granted under the rules on the decease of the subscriber, and accordingly the family of a subscriber, who had died before 1st April 1878, could not claim it. The deductions of one-sixth were wholly eliminated from the Actuary's calculations of the liabilities of the Fund from 1st April 1878, and at page 7 of his second report, he shows the charges placed on the Fund by the extension from that date of the special allowances to motherless orphans, and by the provisions of special allowances to sons attaining the age of 16. The actual effect, therefore, of the first resolution would be simply to give to certain families arrear payments before 1st April 1878 of allowances which they never expect to get, and which accordingly never entered into their calculations in regulating their expenditure. The donation, for instance, is given avowedly to enable the family to meet the expenses incident on settling in a home. Can it be said that there is any reason in giving in 1880 a donation of £200 or £300 to the family of a subscriber who died in 1874 in order to enable them to establish themselves? The Managers are altogether unable to understand how such a proceeding can be recommended on the ground of "keeping faith with the members of our own Service." They will show further on that the proposal as it stands involves a breach of faith with two other classes—annuitants who retired before 31st March 1873 and died before 31st March 1878, and annuitants now surviving. To deprive the families of the former of benefits given to the families of active subscribers who died during the same period, and to tax the latter indefinitely to provide the necessary funds, would be to act in diametric opposition to the terms of the resolution of January 1874, on which the proposals of the circular profess to proceed.

5. With reference to the second Resolution, the Managers do not know why Mr. G. K. Webster is selected for exceptional treatment. It is the duty of the Managers to inform the subscribers that, if this resolution is adopted, there are many other subscribers who will possess similar claims. The amendment of the rule must have effect from 1st April 1873, if it is taken beyond 1st April 1878; and every invalid annuitant who retired in the interval will come within its purview. Mr. Richardson Evans is precisely in the same position as Mr. Webster: he retired in March 1877, and, like Mr. Webster, secured one-fourth benefits only to his family. Messrs. W. Johnstone, P. Humphrey, E. Waterfield, and G. Graham retired between 1873 and 1878, making up their balances to Rs. 12,500, and securing half benefits. If Mr. Webster is to be admitted to the same position without paying anything, clearly the amounts paid by these gentlemen, not being demandable under the amended rule, must be refunded. Messrs. C. E. C. Merington, H. Priestly, D. W. Marsden, H. M. Rogers, P. Hurley, and E. M. Money have not made up their balance to the minimum of Rs. 6,250, and have consequently ceased to belong to the Fund. If the operation of the amendment is thrown back so as to secure half benefits to Mr. Webster's family, these subscribers must also be rectored, and the Fund must undertake liability for their existing or future families. The cost of this measure alone to the Fund would be nearly Rs. 70,000.

6. But the Managers must point out that the proposal to extend special consideration to invalid annuitants who retired between 1873 and 1878 is not reasonable, even on the grounds on which the other proposals of the circular are supposed to rest. The argument of the circular is that the subscribers of 1874 only abstained from utilizing the then existing surplus in certain ways, on the understanding that their families would not lose by the postponement, and that their expectations must be fulfilled. Now, it is clear that those expectations could only extend to measures which had been already discussed. But the proposal to deal specially with invalid annuitants was never mooted till 1879. Clearly, therefore, any invalid subscriber retiring before 1st April 1878 was innocent of any expectation of special benefit of this nature, and the subscribers have not even an imaginary duty to fulfil in regard to him.

7. The Managers cannot accept the proposal to exclude from the additional benefits the families of annuitants who retired from the service before 31st March 1873, but who died before 31st March 1878. The arguments that they were not voters when the resolution of January 1874 was carried, and "were not considered when that vote was passed," are such as have not hitherto been resorted to in dealing with Fund questions, and they will not, the Managers apprehend, find favour with the subscribers. Though annuitants are from the accident of their position, debarred from active co-operation in the administration of the Fund, they have, it is needless to say, precisely the same rights in the Fund that active subscribers possess. To exclude them from benefits because they were not present to assert their rights, or to cause themselves to be considered, would be a proceeding out of harmony with the spirit that has hitherto governed the action of the Service. The proposal, however, is impracticable as well as unjust. The same error has been made here as has been made in regard to the position of incumbent families on 1st April 1878. As has already been said, additions can only be made to benefits by amendments of rules, and retrospective distribution can only be effected by giving retrospective effect to the amendments. If it is intended to give retrospective effect to 1st April 1873, every case occurring on or since that date must be dealt with as if the amended rule applied to it. Therefore the families of deceased annuitants must have precisely the same privileges as those of deceased active subscribers, however little the interests of the annuitants in question may have been considered by those who voted away the surplus funds.

8. Before proceeding to discuss the estimate of the cost of the proposed measures, it is necessary for the Managers to advert to the source from which it is sought to obtain the funds required. It is proposed in the circular to meet the increased charges "by a further postponement of the total exemption of annuitants." Now, the resolution of January 1874, on which the circular relies, provided that "any benefits that may be distributed shall have retrospective effect from the 1st April 1873." It is not easy to see how those who rely upon this resolution can propose, not only not to give retrospective effect to one of the benefits decreed, but to postpone it indefinitely. The Managers apprehend that it is not open to those who consider the resolution binding to proceed directly against its terms, in order, amongst other things, to provide funds for a measure which it did not contemplate.

9. It is estimated in the circular that the cost of the proposals would be "about two lakhs, or perhaps rather more than two lakhs;" but no details are given to show the basis on which the estimate was framed. With reference to this point it may be mentioned that, in returning to Mr. Cotton his draft circular, the Managers warned him that many of his statements were open to contradiction, and that the liabilities which his proposal involved would "certainly enormously exceed" his estimate of two lakhs. The proposals are too vague to be made the subject of a precise estimate. In the first place the Managers have shown that the greater part of the effect intended by the signatories is already included under the Resolutions of January, so that the actual effect in regard to the families named is much less than the signatories intend. But, on the other hand, it is clear that the proposals cannot be accepted without entailing several extensions beyond what the circular contemplates. Taking the proposals as they appear to the signatories of the circular, the Managers have no hesitation in saying that the estimate should be multiplied by at least five. Taking them as they must in any case be modified by the considerations which have been detailed above, the Managers present the following estimate of the real cost of giving effect to the amendments of the rules from 1st April 1873, with the exception of that regarding the ordinary subscriptions of annuitants:—

Refund of one-sixth deductions	11,350
Refund of additional subscriptions, composition, &c.	11,460
Increase of £50 to sons	3,050
Increase of 50 per cent. to motherless orphans	11,300
Donations	12,350
Refund to invalid annuitants	1,460
Value of contingent and potential benefits to families of invalid annuitants who have left the Fund, so far as known	5,430
Total	56,400

As regards the proposal to retain the ordinary subscriptions of annuitants in order to cover this charge, it must be remembered that these subscriptions have been provisionally retained, on the ground that the proposals already carried out have left the Fund considerably in deficit. Mr. Cotton's proposal would leave the Fund in deficit by 5½ lakhs in addition to the present deficit of about 3 lakhs, making a total of at least 8½ lakhs. The retention of 4½ lakhs would only meet half of this deficit. To carry out the proposals now made, therefore, it would be necessary either to continue the subscriptions of annuitants to both branches for a practically indefinite period, or to impose additional rates on active subscribers. The Managers think it right to inform the subscribers that the first course is not open to them consistently with the undertaking already given by the Service. In 1869 the subscribers decided by a majority of 92 to 11 to amend the rules so as to relieve annuitants of all charges except a composition rate of one-tenth of their subscriptions, which was to be maintained under the erroneous impression that some payment would be required to ensure correct returns of family occurrences. As the Actuary reported that the Fund could not afford this measure in full, it was decided "for the present" to reduce annuitants' subscriptions only by half. But it has always been recognized that the Service is committed to the remission of annuitants' subscriptions as soon as the Fund can afford it. The circular professes to rest upon the general resolution of January 1874,—the provisions of which, however, it proposes to infringe, but it takes no cognizance of a formal amendment of the rules deliberately adopted by the Service, and avowedly only suspended for a time on financial grounds.

10. It remains therefore for the subscribers to decide whether they are willing to impose additional taxation on active members in order that certain families may receive arrear payments, for a period which closed more than two-and-a-half years ago, representing allowances which they never expected to receive, and for which the occasion has necessarily passed away, and that a number of invalid annuitants may be placed in a position which, at the time of their retirement, they could not possibly have contemplated. The Managers have little doubt what the decision of the Service will be.

11. In conclusion, the Managers desire me to say that while they are most anxious that all proposals affecting the Fund should receive the fullest possible discussion (and of this they have given ample proof in the communications addressed to the subscribers before the proposals carried in January were formally submitted), and that the records of the Fund Office should be consulted to the fullest extent by every subscriber, they must point out the impossibility of carrying on the administration of a great institution like our Fund, if there is to be no finality in formal amendments of rules. In the present instance the measures for distributing the surplus were fully discussed before they were formulated; they were under consideration by the subscribers in their formal shape for two months before the general meeting was held; they were discussed at the meeting; they were, after being carried with only one dissentient vote in a meeting at which 45 subscribers were present, submitted for two months to the further consideration of the Service, and they were confirmed by an overwhelming majority. Eight months after this confirmation certain gentlemen re-opened the discussion. Even had these gentlemen consistently opposed the resolutions of January, the Managers think that they should have accepted the decision of the majority of the subscribers. But it is a remarkable circumstance that not one of them recorded a vote against the measures which they now so vehemently assail. Three of them voted unreservedly for all the resolutions. The other signatories of the circular did not feel themselves called upon even to return the voting papers supplied to them.

With this exposition of the circumstances, the Managers leave it to the Service to pronounce its decision on the question. In order that Members who cannot be present at the meeting may be able to record their votes on one side or the other, the usual form of proxy is enclosed. The Managers hope that Members of the Service will not fail in these important discussions to exercise their privilege of recording a distinct vote, so that some finality may be attained.

I have, &c.,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary.

Mr. Cotton has announced in the public papers that he does not intend to bring forward the Resolutions in question: but the Managers have received no communication from him on the subject.

The following letter has since been received by the Managers :—
TO THE MANAGERS OF THE BENGAL CIVIL FUND.

GENTLEMEN,

WE have had under consideration your circular of the 11th instant on the subject of the retrospective effect to be given to the increased benefits from the Fund to the families of subscribers deceased since 1873. We have also read the letter published by Mr. Cotton in to-day's Englishman, in which that gentleman announces (for the first time) his withdrawal from the positions originally taken up by him in common with the rest of us.

2. In the circular to which we attached our signatures, we took up two prominent and important positions—the first, to the effect that a resolution which had received the formal sanction of the service, and which consequently, under paragraph 2, Articles 17 and 18 of the rules, was “finally adopted” and became “final and conclusive,” had never been formally rescinded by the service; and the second, that certain increased benefits should be extended to the families of certain specified deceased subscribers with retrospective effect from April 1873.

3. The second of these positions has been, we consider, disposed of by your circular already alluded to. We now understand that it has been your intention to extend to the families of subscribers dying between 1873 and 1878 very much what our first proposal was intended to secure for them, inasmuch as it is now stated that such families are to be included in the increased benefits which are to accrue from April 1878.

4. But our first position remains, in our opinion, intact. We do not find in your reply any specific statement to the effect that the final and conclusive resolution arrived at by the service has been formally cancelled or rescinded by the subscribers, who alone have power in the matter. We do not find that the question of rescission has been ever formally put to the subscribers as it should be. The fact that the resolution of the Managers was “prominently referred to” on the occasion of the vote being taken thereon has not, we consider, that formality which the rules require; and the further argument that the majority of the service voted for the accrual of the increased benefits from April 1878, while it shows indeed that the subscribers were willing to go so far, falls short of a resolve on the part of the service that they should go no further. It is true that in your circular of the 11th instant you state that “the vote was taken on the proposal to give retrospective effect to the amendments of the rules from the 31st April 1878 only.” But if you will refer to the report of the meeting held on the 31st January 1880, as well as to the vote paper separately circulated amongst all subscribers, you will find that this word “only” occurs in neither; and we think you will agree with us that many who did vote on that occasion may not have understood that they were voting for the entire cancelment of the former resolution of the service, and that the word “only” should not, therefore, have been inserted in the circular-reply. Taking, therefore, into consideration the whole facts of the case as they are now before us, we are of opinion that the resolution of January 1874 should now be formally and specifically cancelled or amended so as to meet the circumstances of the Fund, so as to allow an accrual of increased benefits from April 1878 only.

5. We have only to add that for the accuracy of the statements contained in our previous circular we are not directly responsible. We were not all in a position to satisfy ourselves from a personal inspection of the records of the Fund as to the accuracy of these statements, and some of us accepted them on the distinct declaration (communicated to us) that they were statements of absolute and undeniable facts.

6. We are now content to leave the matter in the hands of the Managers, being satisfied that we have done our duty in bringing what we consider to be an omission to the notice of the service, and that the Managers will be, equally with ourselves, desirous to rectify this omission so as best to suit the interests of all subscribers.

We have, &c.,

G. J. B. T. DALTON.
A. A. WACE.
C. A. WILKINS.
F. C. DAUKES.
J. A. BOURDILLON.
L. C. ABBOTT.

The 25th December 1880.

With reference to the last paragraph of this letter, the Managers are satisfied that the decision arrived at represents fully the wishes of the service at large, and they are of opinion that no further formal action on their part is required.

7. In accordance with Article XXII of the revised rules, the Managers have to report that the Hon'ble J. O'Kinealy having obtained six months' leave of absence from 11th October last, tendered his resignation as an elected manager, and that the Hon'ble H. J. Reynolds was invited to join the Board of Managers in succession to Mr. O'Kinealy.

8. The following is the result of the voting on the resolution of the Special General Meeting of 22nd November :—

“That so much of the amendment of Article VIII of the Rules, adopted at the Half-yearly General Meeting held on 31st January last, as regards the subscriptions of annuitants to the Ordinary Branch of the Fund be held in abeyance.”

Proposed by The Hon'ble A. Mackenzie, Seconded by , and carried.

THAT the following gentlemen be elected Managers for the ensuing year:—

Hon'ble Mr. Justice McDonell, v.c.; Hon'ble H. J. Reynolds; J. Monro, Esq.; A. Forbes, Esq., and C. A. Wilkins, Esq.

Mr. Cotton said that he rose to make a personal explanation, and also to make a statement which he thought, in the opinion of the subscribers present, would call for explanation from the Board of Management. Although he had no especial authority to do so, he felt that in the remarks he was about to make he might speak both for himself and for the other gentlemen who had joined with him in signing the appeal-circular to the subscribers dated 26th November 1880. That circular was in the hands of all present. It proposed that the increased benefits awarded at the General Meeting of 31st January 1880, should be awarded (in accordance with the Resolution of the 28th January 1874) so as to include the specified families of subscribers who died after the 1st April 1873, but before the 1st April 1878, from which latter date only the benefits were declared by the meeting of 31st January 1880 to have effect. It had subsequently been explained by the Managers, in their circular of the 11th December 1880, that the families of the subscribers who died within this quinquennial period "were, except in respect of the donation, in exactly the same position from 1st April 1878 as the families of subscribers who died on or after that date." So that in point of fact the appeal which he and others thought it necessary to make to the Service had substantially been allowed by the management, and there was no necessity therefore for him to press the resolution of which he had given notice.

He would explain, however, that the authoritative interpretation now given by the Managers, of the retrospective character of the benefits recently awarded, was a novel one and directly inconsistent with the interpretation the Managers had themselves put upon the same point in the circular letter in which they had recommended those benefits for the approval of the Service. In that circular, dated 13th October 1879, it was distinctly explained that the families of subscribers who died before 1st April 1878, would be ineligible for any increased benefits that might be awarded. The arguments of that circular had never been disavowed or contradicted. They had gone abroad to the Service as indicating the policy it was intended to follow in regard to the distribution of benefits, and Mr. Cotton for one certainly understood from them, and he believed that almost every member of the Service was also with him in understanding from them, that the families of subscribers who died before 1st April 1878, were excluded from all participation in the increased benefits recently awarded.

In order to justify these remarks and the public action he had taken in consequence of the opinion he held, he would read to the meeting extracts from the Managers' circular of the 13th October 1879. That circular was sent along with a copy of the Actuaries' report, and

"submitted proposals for the distribution of the surplus as ascertained by Mr. Sutton." Paragraph 3 of that circular is expressed as follows:—

"3. The Managers consider it unnecessary to go back farther than 31st March 1878 for the adjustment of the accounts. It is a fixed principle in the administration of all systems of insurance that long retrospective effect cannot be given to any distribution of surplus funds. The existing members of a fund are alone entitled to the benefit of a surplus, as they alone bear the chance of having to provide for a deficit."

He begged to call particular attention to the last-quoted sentence. It meant, as plainly as words could say it, that members of the Fund who had died before 1st April 1878 would not be entitled to the benefit of the surplus, and the reason it gave for their exclusion was, that as they were dead and no longer subscribers, it would be impossible to impose upon them any liability to provide for a deficit. Under this interpretation there could be no doubt that the families of the late Messrs. Schaleh, Geoghegan, Carpenter, Falcon, and others, enumerated in the appeal which he and his co-signitaries had made to the Service, would be excluded once and for all from any participation in the increased benefits. He would continue reading from the 3rd paragraph of the Managers' circular:—

"Claims which have become incumbent are represented by separate allotment of funds to provide for them. No risk attaches to them, they have been settled in full, and it would be impossible to manage any institution properly if they were liable to reconsideration."

These words also can bear but one meaning. They mean that funds had been appropriated on account of the families of subscribers who died before the 1st April 1878, and that it would be impossible to readjust the amount of appropriated funds so as to admit those families to any subsequently sanctioned increase of benefits.

The same paragraph proceeds:—

"Moreover, the principle of retrospective adjustment, if once admitted, would involve the extinction of the greater part of the surplus, with no appreciable benefit to the Fund."

This sentence, when read with the context of the words which precede it, has no other meaning than that the Managers were opposed to granting increased benefits to the families of any subscriber who died before the 1st April 1878, on the ground that, by so doing, they would swallow up the greater part of the Fund surplus.

The Managers then proceeded, in the circular from which he was quoting, to describe the increased benefits proposed, and to estimate the cost of each. In the seventh paragraph they summarise their remarks, and continue, in language which must clear away the faintest doubt that may have lingered in the mind of any reader, as follows:—

These measures (i.e. above recited benefits) as well as the abolition of the rule regarding one-sixth deductions, the Managers would wish to see introduced at once with retrospective effect from 1st April 1878, the first day of the new quinquennial period,—that is, they will be applied to all pensions which have become incumbent on or after that date."

Here is a distinct exclusion of all pensions which had become incumbent before the 1st April 1878. There is nothing more wanted to show that, in the opinion of the Managers, on the 13th October 1879 the families of all subscribers who had come on the Fund before 1st April 1878 were to be excluded from any participation in the increased benefits. This at least is the view Mr. Cotton took, and this is the justification—he ventured to think it was a satisfactory one—that he had now to offer to the Service for the action he had taken. In this view of the case he had recorded a formal written protest from Chittagong, where he was stationed at the time of the last January meeting. At that meeting it is true the subject was just alluded to, but nothing explanatory of the circular of the 13th October, or in any way modifying the observations therein expressed, was elicited from the management.

Mr. Cotton being fully occupied with other concerns was then inclined to let the matter drop, but he was moved to act again on the representation of others who had a personal interest in seeing that the incumbents of the Fund, during the quinquennial period from 1873 to 1878, were not excluded from the increased benefits. He accordingly, on the 6th September 1880, addressed the Secretary to the Fund with the same arguments as those on which his own and his co-signitaries' circular of the 26th November was based, and in order to avoid any division in the Service, asked the Managers to identify themselves with a proposal, that the increased benefits should be distributed with retrospective effect, so as to include the families of all subscribers who died during the quinquennial period from 1873 to 1878, and pointed out that this was in accordance with the Resolution of the 28th January 1874, which enjoined that "any benefits that may be distributed shall have retrospective effect from the 1st April 1873." In reply to this representation Mr. Cotton received a letter on the 15th September, in which it was said that the Managers "did not consider that they could profitably enter on a discussion of an informal proposal, made by a single member of the Service, to set aside a Resolution almost unanimously adopted by the Service at a recent General Meeting." There was no mention in this reply that Mr. Cotton was labouring under any misapprehension in regard to the actual retrospective distribution of the benefits, or that the Managers in any way repudiated the principles and proposals they had enunciated in their circular of the 13th October 1879.

Failing to get any satisfaction from the management, and relying entirely on the statements of the Managers in their circular of October, which it never occurred to him for one moment to mistrust, Mr. Cotton then consulted certain other members of the service as to the course he should pursue, and the result was the issue of the circular-appeal to the Service, dated 28th November 1880. The result of this appeal was that Managers proceeded to make an elaborate exposition of the case for the information of the Service.

The manifesto of the Managers, dated 11th December 1880, was a most valuable document, and although it contained many passages, personal allusions, as well as other points open to much objection, Mr. Cotton did not propose to detain the meeting by indulging in any criticism in regard to them. He might say in passing that he considered the expression "vehement assault" contained in the penultimate paragraph was quite uncalled for by any of the language used in his own circular. But he did not wish to dwell on such matters. He would refer to the fourth paragraph only, and was glad to express his unqualified satisfaction that the Fund management had now been able to place such an interpretation on the retrospective clause as to admit the families of all subscribers who died before 1st April 1878 to the full benefits now sanctioned (except donation), equally with the families of subscribers who may die, or have died, after that date. The Managers had now virtually conceded what he and his co-signitaries had asked for, and the only regret he had to express was that the Managers had not thought fit to favour him personally with this explanation (which had now, as it were, been furnished at the eleventh hour) when he addressed them in September last on the subject. Had the Managers at that time discussed the matter with him, or supplied him with information, which presumably at that time was available, showing that their October circular was no longer to be accepted as an indication of the Managers' policy, much time and trouble would have been saved.

Mr. Cotton had now completed the personal explanation he had to make to the meeting. He would now ask the Managers to furnish the explanation he thought was due from them to the meeting,—that is to say, he would ask them to reconcile the contradictory statements he had pointed out that afternoon, between the remarks contained in the circular of the 13th October 1879 and those contained in the fourth paragraph of the circular of the 11th December 1880. Before he sat down, however, he wished to make some remarks regarding the distribution of the surplus, with retrospective effect, to the families of invalid annuitants. This was a point prominently alluded to in the appeal-circular of the 28th November. The name of Mr. Webster was particularly cited in that circular, because from the information available to the drafters of that circular it could not be discovered that any other invalid annuitant occupied a similar position to his. The facts of Mr. Webster's case were that he retired with a family in 1877, and now subscribes at quarter rates, and that under the Resolution of 1880, his wife and children on his death will only get quarter benefits, calculated on the increased allowances now awarded; but if the benefits recently sanctioned are extended as contemplated by the Resolution of 1874, they would be entitled to half benefits calculated on the increased allowances. It is now explained by the Managers that there are other subscribers who possess similar claims to those of Mr. Webster, and that if half benefits were guaranteed to Mr. Webster's family, it would be necessary to restore other subscribers to the Fund, and that the Fund would have to undertake liability for their existing or future families. The cost of such a measure is estimated by the Managers at nearly Rs. 70,000. It appeared, however, to Mr. Cotton that this estimate would probably be found to be excessive. He observed that in the Managers' circular of 22nd November 1879, in which the concession of this benefit generally to the families of invalid annuitants was discussed and recommended, it was stated: "The provision will not affect wives married, and children born of such wives after retirement. The cost of the benefit proposed by the Managers will not be great. Cases of this nature are so rare that they cannot be accurately valued." The benefit at that time was considered a very inexpensive one, and yet when the Managers were asked to extend it to the families of the invalid annuitants during a single quinquennial period, they pointed out that for these families only the benefit would cost nearly Rs. 70,000. It occurred to Mr. Cotton that when the management were in favour of a proposal, there was a tendency among the Managers to under-estimate its cost; but that when they were opposed to a proposition, they were liable to a tendency to pronounce the cost greater than it really was. In the present case it must be remembered that the benefit proposed "would not effect wives married, and children born of such wives after retirement." It was Mr. Cotton's belief that, of the invalid annuitants between 1st April 1873 and 1st April 1878, not above two or three were married at the time of retirement, and it was in his opinion out of the question to say that it would cost nearly Rs. 70,000 to extend the recently sanctioned benefit to the case of these families. Those who retired as bachelors could have no claim on the Fund on account of this benefit. It appeared to Mr. Cotton that the Managers had lost sight of this fact, and he questioned therefore the accuracy of their calculations. He threw himself on the favourable consideration of the Managers and of the meeting in dealing with this question. There was no class of subscribers for whom the members of the Service ought to feel greater sympathy than for the invalid annuitants. They were all men out off from active service in the prime of life, with pitiful annuities hardly sufficient to support existence, and their families, in the event of their death, will be even in still narrower circumstances. It was not for Mr. Webster's family only that he was pleading, but for the families of all other invalid annuitants who had retired between 1873 and 1878, and whose position under the rules was similar to that of Mr. Webster's family. He was sure that if the accounts were again made up, the cost of this concession would come to a very insignificant total compared with the resources of the Fund and the value of the benefit to the family in each individual case. He earnestly hoped that the Managers and the meeting would consider his plea, and, as a special case, or as a special favour, allow the wives married to, and children born of, the invalid annuitants of this quinquennial period, at the time of retirement, the full value of the benefits awarded to the families of invalid annuitants by the Resolutions passed at the last January meeting.

Mr. Westland said he was surprised to find Mr. Cotton, when he rose to address the meeting, instead of offering an apology to the Managers, had proceeded to demand explanations of them. The proceedings which culminated on the resolution of last January had been characterized by the utmost deliberation, having been submitted to the Service for discussion for some months before the meeting, and afterwards in accordance with the rules for conformation after it; he thought that Mr. Cotton should have been more careful before challenging the resolutions, and re-opening the whole matter by a new agitation. It was only twelve months since he (Mr. Westland) in this same place had complained of Members of the Service rushing into print, and getting up agitations without first making some enquiry as to their facts. Last year's agitation collapsed the moment a simple statement of the fact was made. This year's had collapsed for the same reason even before it came up for discussion.

Mr. Cotton had tried to justify his misapprehension of the facts by quoting from a Circular of the Managers of October 1879, in which they had asked for the opinions of the Service. The fact was that the Managers, after consulting the Service, and receiving, among other communications, one from Mr. Cotton himself, had determined to frame the resolutions so as to give the new benefits more of retrospective effect than they at first indicated; and Mr. Cotton, if he wanted to know what the effect of the resolutions was, should have looked to their wording, and not merely excerpted a statement from the discussions preceding it. At the meeting of January 1880, when the resolutions were brought forward, a valuation of their effect was printed and laid upon the table, where an entry would be found of the very benefits which Mr. Cotton was proposing by his first resolution; and afterwards in the Actuary's report, which was circulated to all the Service, the same entry was made, viz. "present incumbents" upon page 7. If Mr. Cotton had only read the documents sent him, he would never have been under any misapprehension as to the purport of the resolutions.

Then, besides that, Mr. Cotton sent a copy of his proposed circular to the Managers, and was distinctly informed that "many of his statements were open to contradiction." But the only result was, as appeared from a letter now received from Mr. Cotton's co-signatories, that the circular was sent to them for signature, with the assurance that "they were statements of absolute and undeniable facts." It was plainly Mr. Cotton himself and not the Managers who were responsible for the former so completely misunderstanding the facts of the case concerning which he had undertaken to address the Service.

As the other point raised by Mr. Cotton,—the case of the invalid annuitants,—Mr. Westland said that he was very sorry to appear to press hard upon any individual. Mr. Webster was a friend of his own, and he could not but sympathize with him in the misfortunes which had closed to him an Indian Career. But the Managers were dealing in this matter with money which they held as trustees, and they would manifestly fail in their duty, if, instead of holding the scales evenly between all parties, they were to give special consideration to the hard cases which happened to come to their personal knowledge, or with which they might have some personal sympathy. Mr. Webster had at the time of his retirement deliberately chosen to insure his life for quarter benefits, and that at a time when no question had been raised about giving any extension in that direction. His case was not distinguishable from that of a person who, after insuring his life in an assurance office for £500, should apply that, in consideration of his special hardship, he might get £1,000 instead, and he would leave the meeting to judge what the Directors' reply to such an application would be. It was manifestly impossible for the Managers to accept Mr. Cotton's motion to separate off Mr. Webster's case for special treatment.

On the question of valuations Mr. Westland warned the meeting of the carefulness necessary in discussing all questions of increased benefits. The Managers drew up careful valuations of all that they themselves proposed, and the details of these were as open to Mr. Cotton as to any other person. All these questions were matters of very serious responsibility, and he warned the service of the extreme danger they would be led into, if they permitted private members to brush aside all careful calculations upon the mere plea that their own inner consciousness gave a result that differed from that arrived at by mathematical processes. He also explained the details of the Rs. 70,000, stated by the Managers as the cost of the application of Mr. Cotton's proposal to such invalid annuitant cases as were known.

Mr. Dampier said that before the subject was dropped, he would like to ask Mr. Westland on behalf of the Managers a question—

If before the next meeting Mr. Cotton were to address the Managers saying that he proposed to bring forward a motion that the service should as a matter of grace admit all subscribers whose cases stood on all fours with that of Mr. Webster, to the extra benefits which had been proposed for Mr Webster, and asking the Managers to assist him in getting up his case by furnishing a list of such members, and of the probable cost which the measure would entail, what answer would the Managers make to such an application?

No one could regret more than he did the growth of what he might term an opposition to the Managers, which was inclined to be overwilling to call them to account for informalities rather than to accept what they did on its merits.

Mr. Barbour pointed out that the question raised by Mr. Dampier was not before the meeting, and that Mr. Westland had no authority to speak for the Managers.

Mr. Westland said that he had no business to answer for the Managers in such a matter as of course it would come before the Board for settlement, but that for himself he might say that, if Mr. Cotton, or any other member of the Service, desired to bring forward any reasonable proposal, he would give him every facility for obtaining information from the records of the Fund Office; and if Mr. Cotton wished to bring forward such a motion as Mr. Dampier mentioned, he (Mr. Westland) would also be happy to give him personal assistance.

Mr. Dampier said that his question was now completely and satisfactorily answered.

After a vote of thanks to the Chair the meeting dissolved.
